

8thGrade Art at Monroe Middle School

The Painted Chair Project began in 2008 and continues to be a successful project. The Art Department collects recycled (old and used) chairs or stools.

The chairs are used as an art format for painting in art class. The painted chairs have evolved into a project that is used as a fundraiser for various local service organizations. This year the students selected our local Humane Society.

In the eighth grade art classes, the students are studying one work of a master artist, and painting a section of that work on a chair. The chair becomes the canvas for their study.

Students display their finished work in the hallway and really enjoy hearing the positive comments as well as being seen as a value to others. The project culminates with a week-long silent auction. This year the silent auction was held before Holiday break.

Students pictured are from left to right: Tanner Thompson, Kayli Kruser, Cassie Wilhite, Haley Lehman, Deb Broge(Executive Director), Morgan Quinn, and Haley Schmidt

